

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

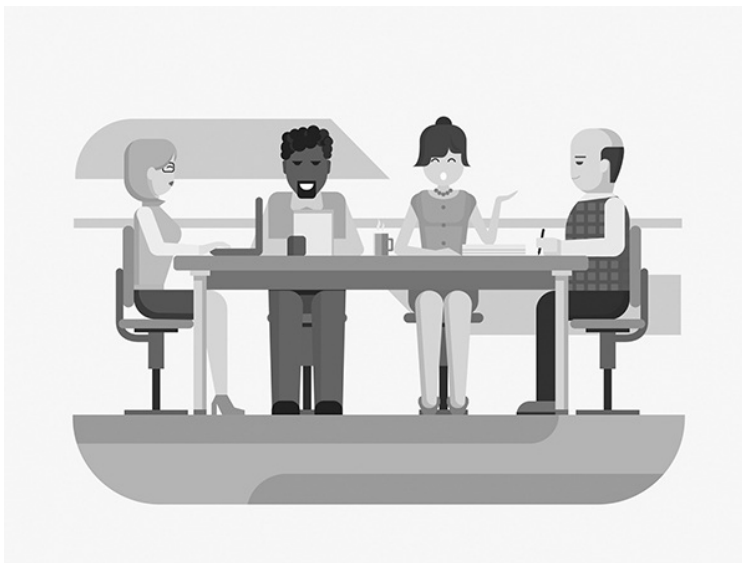

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's present ideas in a meeting!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use important information about people's jobs and places of work in communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can ask for and give opinions.
- I can agree and disagree.
- I can talk about jobs and work.

Ask your partner:

- How do you prepare for a presentation?
- Do you get nervous before presenting your ideas? Why or why not?

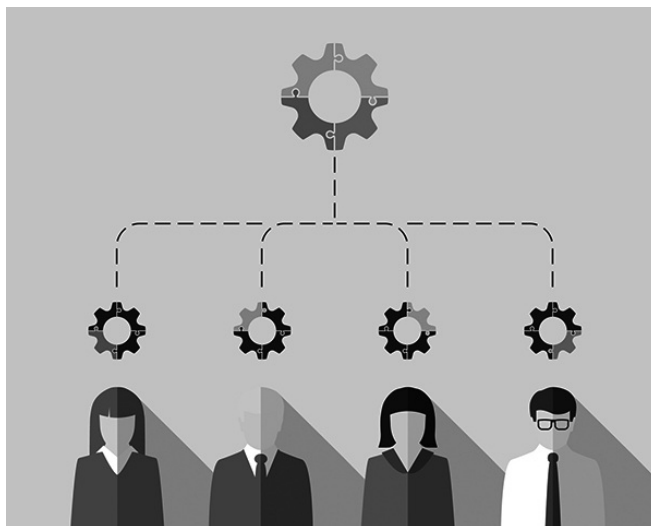

Let's Explore!

Miranda and Mr. Farmani talk about Polygon's ideas for Holly's. Can they come up with a plan that will be advantageous to both parties?

* To "come up with" is another way to say think of.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Miranda: That's a good point. I don't disagree that online sales could work. However, one of our company's core values is "Test everything: assume nothing".
- Farmani: I'm not sure that's always the case. Could you elaborate on that?
- Miranda: In my view, after all these years on the Internet, you just never know what strategy or angle is going to work best until you test it.
- Farmani: I'm sure you are right. But the way I see it, their offer so far sounds better than what you have put on the table. What's your idea for our new clothing line?
- Miranda: Going back to what I was saying, our plan for the clothing line is to stage and sponsor big events to promote it ...
- Farmani: Pardon me, but that's beyond the point. How do you reckon spending money on events translates into sales?
- Miranda: You could say that, but by sponsoring these events for clients, stakeholders, and the media, we are creating publicity for your new clothing line and boosting your product's desirability.
- Farmani: That's not really how I see it, I'm afraid. To be frank, I'm strongly considering what the Garcias have offered. I will wait for your final offer, however.
- Miranda: I understand, Mr. Farmani. I'm sure we'll come up with something that is mutually advantageous to both parties.

Let's Practice!

What's your proposal?

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentence. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. core / values. / our / company's / one / of / This / is

2. definitely / Online / sales / work. / could

3. events / and / We / clients / will / for / stakeholders. / our / sponsor

4. clothing / publicity / are / new / your / for / line. / creating / We

5. are / We / boosting / your / desirability. / product's

6. mutually / up / with / to / both / advantageous / parties. / We'll / come / something

Let's Practice!

What does Mr. Farmani say and ask?

Instructions: Proofread the sentence. Underline the incorrect word. Write down the correct word to complete the sentence. Use capital letters where necessary.

That's a nice point.

I'm knot sire that's always the chase.

I'm sure you are alright , but the method I see it their offer so far sounds better than what you have put on the table.

That's now really how I see it, I'm already.

You can talk that, but by sponsoring these events for clients, we are creating publicity for your line.

Extension Activity

Every company has core values. Research core values and create one of your own.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- A core value is a belief that a person or organization views as very important. An example of a core value is "Test everything: assume nothing."
- Work with a partner to research core values of other companies. You can use newspapers or the Internet.
- Make a list of all the core values you find. Use this list to create a new core value for a PR company.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I understand what a core value is.

☐
☐

I read and identify different core values.

☐
☐

I create a new core value.

☐
☐

Target Words

- core value (noun): a belief that an organization views as very important e.g. One of our company's core values is "Test everything: assume nothing."
- angle (noun): a specific way of approaching a problem
e.g. You never know what angle is going to work best until you test it.
- to translate (verb): to convert into another form
e.g. Spending money on events can translate into sales.
- stakeholder (noun): a person with an interest in a business
e.g. We can create publicity by sponsoring events for stakeholders.
- desirability (noun): the quality of being desirable (necessary or useful) e.g. We need to boost your product's desirability.
- mutually (adjective): with mutual action (experienced by two or more people or groups of people) e.g. The relationship is mutually beneficial.
- advantageous (adjective): creating favorable conditions that increase the chances of success
e.g. Our proposal will be advantageous to your company.
- party (noun): a group of people with the same opinions
e.g. Polygon and Holly's are the two parties present at the meeting.

Learning Points

Language for Agreeing and Disagreeing

In English, when people give an opinion, it is important to show that you either agree or don't agree with it. There are many different ways in which we can show agreement and disagreement in English. Here are some of them:

Agreeing	Disagreeing
(That's a) good point. (That's) so true. I feel the same way. I'm sure you are right. That's my opinion too. I see what you mean. I can see your point now. I don't disagree with that.	Not necessarily. (But) don't you think that ...? (But) what about ... ? I don't really agree. I'm not sure that's always the case. The way I see it ... I'd like to agree (with you), but ... That's really not how I see it, I'm afraid. You could say that, but ...

Note:

In English, the word "agree" is not used with the verb "to be". Notice how the word "agree" is used:

- ~~I'm agree with you.~~
- I agree with you.
- ~~I'm not agree with what you're saying.~~
- I do not agree with what you're saying.

Learning Points

Asking for and Giving Opinions

In the business world, it is common to give your opinion about things. However, it is advisable to ask another person about their thoughts on something before you tell them how you feel about something. Here are some ways in which you can ask and give opinions.

Asking for Opinions	Giving Opinions
• What's your idea for ... ? • What do you think of ... ? • What do you think about ... ? • How do you reckon ... ? • How d'you feel (about ...)? • What's your idea of ... ? • What's your opinion of ... ? • (What do think about) that? • Could you elaborate on that? • Where do you stand (on ...)?	I reckon ... As far as I know, ... If you ask me, ... Personally, To my mind, The way I see it, ... To be honest / frank ... In my view, ...

NOTE:

When giving or asking for someone's opinion, it is also important to know how the word "opinion" is used and what prepositions go with the word. Here are some examples:

• opinion of:

What's your opinion of Farmani's latest clothing line?

• opinion on:

Farmani's opinions on our services are important.

Examples:

- Where do you stand on our new clothing line?
- In my view, this strategy works best with what we are trying to do.

