

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Writing Spot: Let's analyze the Farmani project.

Learning Outcome

Accurately use important information about people's jobs and places of work in communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can write about jobs and work.
- I can compare two things or people.
- I can write a short SWOT analysis.

Ask your partner:

- What project are you working on?
- Is it personal or professional?
- How do you analyze your work?

Let's Explore!

Miranda reads Peter's SWOT analysis.

* "SWOT" stands for strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Strengths

Polygon has a stronger marketing record in North America than the competition, YouBuye. We have partnerships with other PR companies as well as a strong marketing team. This gives us a competitive edge.

We are better known and better established than the competition, YouBuye.

We have Miranda Morehouse, Head of Fashion, who has extensive experience in the fashion industry.

We offer personalized service based on our client's business objectives, agreed upon PR goals and budgets.

We have a system in place: set goals, determine strategy, creative power, hone ideas, and, finally, define success.

Weaknesses

We are less experienced in the Latin American market than YouBuye.

We have eight staff on our workforce, only three of whom speak both Spanish and Portuguese.

YouBuye has a larger staff, ten of whom speak Spanish and Portuguese.

We are located further away from Latin America than YouBuye.

We don't have enough information on the market in Latin America. We have to clarify whether customers can actually afford Holly's apparel. The product will not be marketable if its price range is high.

We don't have enough experience with online retail.

Opportunities

The competition in the fashion industry is fierce; this project could strengthen Polygon's strategic position in the market.

We can get our foot in the door in the Latin American market.

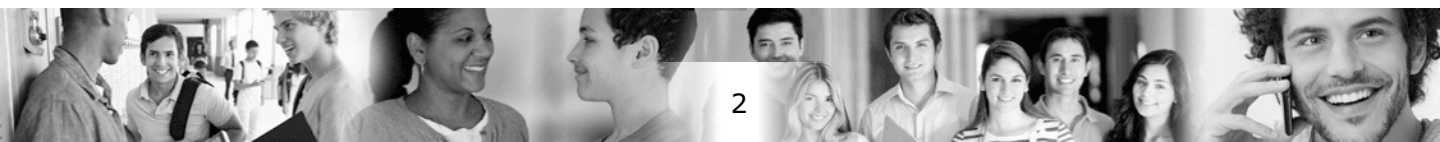

By selling clothes on a large scale in Brazil and Colombia, we might be able to strengthen our professional reputation in Latin America.

Threats

If YouBuye wins the bid, their strategic position in the market will expand.

The potential for selling this type of apparel to large portions of the market in Brazil and Colombia has not been completely evaluated. If the clothing line does not sell, we risk huge financial loss for Farmani and Holly's.

We have no experience working with Latin America. YouBuye is based in Mexico. Therefore, they are more familiar with the culture.

Let's Practice!

How do we fare against* the competition?

*To "fare against" is to perform at a level comparable with that of someone else.

Instructions: Select one of the words below to complete the sentences.

1. Polygon has a _____ marketing record in North America than the competition, YouBuye.
2. We are _____ known and _____ established than the competition, YouBuye.
3. We are _____ experienced in the Latin American market _____ YouBuye.
4. YouBuye has a _____ staff, 10 of whom speak Spanish and Portuguese.

Word bank

- more
- less
- better
- stronger
- larger
- than

Let's Practice!

What does a SWOT analysis include?

Instructions: Mark the following statements true (T) or false (F) when writing a SWOT analysis.

- 1) A SWOT analysis is an evaluation result. _____
- 2) A SWOT analysis helps companies identify internal strengths and weaknesses. _____
- 3) A SWOT analysis includes a critical review. _____
- 4) A SWOT analysis includes strengths and weaknesses only. _____
- 5) A SWOT analysis includes a complete review of options as well as a company's good aspects and aspects to improve. _____
- 6) A threats assessment is an important aspect of a SWOT analysis. _____

Extension Activity

Let's analyze a company!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Brainstorm different companies you know about. Make a list.
- Choose one of the companies.
- Do some research about this company. Make notes.
- Create a SWOT analysis based on this company and the notes you made. Include comparisons.
- Proofread your analysis.
- Share your SWOT analysis with a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I write a short SWOT analysis.

☐ ☐

I write about a company.

☐ ☐

I compare two companies using adjectives.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- personalized (adjective): refers to something that is designed or changed so that it is suitable for a particular company e.g. We offer personalized service based on our client's business objectives.
- to determine (verb): to officially decide something e.g. We need to determine what strategy to use.
- marketable (adjective): sold easily because people want them e.g. They don't think this product will be marketable.
- price range (noun): the highest and lowest prices at which similar products can be sold e.g. If the price range is too high, we won't be able to sell this.
- to strengthen (verb): to become stronger
e.g. This project could strengthen Polygon's position in the market.
- financial loss (noun): refers to when a business spends more than it earns e.g. We risk huge financial loss for Farmani and Holly's.

Learning Points

Writing a SWOT Analysis

A SWOT analysis is a popular tool in the business world commonly used to help an organization brainstorm its internal strengths and weaknesses, as well as its external opportunities and threats.

A SWOT analysis is useful in strategic meetings because it is written in bullet-form and gives a general overview of the company and its market.

When writing a SWOT analysis, the Present Simple tense is commonly used. A few questions you could ask are:

Internal
Strengths • What advantages do we have? • What makes us better than anyone else? • What are some of the things our clients/customers say we do well?	Weaknesses • What areas do we need to improve on? • What are things we need to avoid? • What areas do our competitors have an advantage in?
External
Opportunities • What trends can we take advantage of? • What is the market missing? • Can we take advantage of the local market?	Threats • What are the negative aspects in the current market? • What are our competitors doing? • Is there a change in consumer taste?

Learning Points

Language for Comparing

In business, it is common to describe companies or products by talking about particular qualities or features that they have.

It is also common to compare two different companies. When making comparisons, you use comparative adjectives.

A comparative adjective is used to compare two people, places, ideas or things.

- When comparing two companies that are equal, we use the form as + adjective + as.

Example:

Our strategy is not as appealing as theirs.

- When comparing two companies that are different, we use the form adjective + -er than. For two or more syllable adjectives, more/less + adjective + than.

Examples:

We have a stronger marketing record in Latin America than the competition.

Garcia Partners is more familiar with Latin American culture than Polygon.

- Some adjectives have irregular comparative forms: good → better; bad → worse.

Example:

We are better known and better established than Garcia Partners.

- Some two-syllable adjectives have more than one comparative form. For example, friendly → friendlier / more friendly. The most frequent forms, however, are: cleverer, easier, quieter, simpler; more likely, more costly, and more friendly.

- Sometimes the comparison is implicit (you compare to something which is understood but not mentioned in the sentence).

Example:

We need to get a clearer picture of who we are dealing with.

